

Anger Diary

Anger has a tendency to build silently outside of awareness before growing out of control. Keeping an Anger Diary can help you better understand this emotion and respond to it more effectively.

Instructions: Review the terms below and then complete a diary entry after each anger episode.

Terms	Definitions	Examples
Trigger	something that sets off your anger	getting laughed at, dirty dishes in the sink, a comment from your partner, not getting a job offer
Warning Signs	the feelings, sensations, and behaviors that tell you your anger is building	feeling irritated, clenching your fists, wanting to argue, raising your voice, getting defensive
Response	your reaction when your anger is at its peak	swearing, yelling, saying or doing something hurtful, breaking something, storming out of the house
Outcomes	the result of your anger response	scaring people around you, losing trust, damaging a relationship, getting fired, feeling guilty

Entry #1	Trigger
	Warning Signs
	Response
	Outcomes

Anger Diary

Entry #2	Trigger
	Warning Signs
	Response
	Outcomes

Entry #3	Trigger
	Warning Signs
	Response
	Outcomes

Anger Diary

Entry #4	Trigger
	Warning Signs
	Response
	Outcomes

Entry #5	Trigger
	Warning Signs
	Response
	Outcomes

Anger Diary

Entry #6	Trigger
	Warning Signs
	Response
	Outcomes

Entry #7	Trigger
	Warning Signs
	Response
	Outcomes	